

Two arms that made history

LIVERMORE—Dave Visbeck says his dart-throwing arm is "a little dead" today.

Which isn't surprising. Dave and a friend, Neil Zurakowski, set some world records Saturday when they played a marathon game of "High Score" and totaled up half a million points in 16 hours of playing.

Dave, 23, works in Livermore and attends Chabot College part time. Neil, 18, attends UCLA but is home for the holidays.

The pair decided to play the grueling dart game "just to get into the History of Darting record book, I guess," Dave says. They are also sending proof of their feat to the Guinness Book of World Records with a request to include dart playing among the many sports for which they list world records.

"More people play darts than any other game in the world," Dave explains. "We think darting records ought to be included."

The two belong to the U.S. Dart Association and play in pubs in Hayward and San Francisco when they can. The only established record currently listed in "History of Darting" was made in 1962 when an eight-man team scored a million points in a 17 hour, 26 minute game.

Complying with all the rules for setting a world record wasn't easy, Dave relates.

The garage of the family home on Lillian Street was set up with two regulation English dart boards, 18 inches in diameter, five feet eight inches above the floor, eight feet behind the throwing line.

Family and friends are not allowed to keep score so the players asked their friends to come up with three people who would be scorekeepers for a small fee. Ron Page, James Kroush and Susan Blake took six-hour shifts between the starting time at 6 p.m. Friday and the 500,000th point, scored by Dave at 11:26 Saturday morning.

Scores were totaled on an adding machine. During the first hour they ran up 30,618 points. They found their game distinctly deteriorated as time wore on.

The pair walked some 34 miles each, back and forth to the dart board. Aching legs were their biggest complaint, along with not nearly enough time to rest.

They were allowed a five-minute rest period every hour. A minute or two would be spent checking scores, the rest eating, drinking or just miserably watching the hands of the clock fly by.

"We just sat there and wished the time limit was a little bit longer," recounts Dave who had a head cold to make things worse. "When we had 20 seconds left we'd get on our feet and wait for the buzzer to go off."

"And then we'd start again, three darts every 10 seconds, aiming for things like the triple 19 and triple 20. The dart boards are pretty worn out in that area, now."

Bylaws for a new commission

PLEASANTON — The Human Services Commission adopted its bylaws and set selection of a chairperson and vice-chairperson for its next meeting Jan. 11 last week.

In its initial meeting as a commission, the group picked the second Tuesday of each month as its regular meeting date. The Jan. 11 date is a Wednesday, but that was picked because of interference from holiday scheduling.

At the charter meeting the commission heard Vice Mayor Joyce LeClaire, the council's official liaison to the group, present an overview of the ACAP/ACTEB social services agency's role in the valley. LeClaire is a member of ACAP/ACTEB's board of directors.

Dianne McKenna, the city's Human Services Coordinator, gave a summary of the steps in the city's needs assessments process. They include analyzing the city's needs and matching them to available resources and setting priorities among those needs.

Suspect's release becomes an issue

LIVERMORE — The release of a 23-year-old Lompoc man shortly after he admitted robbing $1,549 from the Emperor's Garden Restaurant caused a controversy in official circles yesterday.

Michael Galen Unick was arrested minutes after the restaurant was robbed Friday night. Police said Unick had confessed to the crime upon being questioned.

Local attorney John Noonan was contacted by an employee of the restaurant, and interceded on behalf of the suspect. He said he called Det. Sgt. Bill Bankert, who told him the suspect had no previous police record and "as far as he was concerned, an O.R. (release on his own recognizance) is okay."

Noonan said Bankert told him that "Generally I am a hard-nosed guy, but he (the suspect) looks like he deserves a break."

The attorney called Judge Mark Eaton and told him that Bankert had recommended the suspect be released.

Noonan and Eaton both previously belonged to the law practice of Noonan, Miller, Critchfield and Eaton.

Sgt. Bankert says he received a call from Noonan on behalf of the suspect, but only answered direct questions about the arrest and the suspect's past record, indicating no preference whether he should be released or remain in jail.

Bankert says he later was called by Judge Eaton, who again asked direct questions and received straight answers. At no time, Bankert says, was he asked his opinion if the suspect should be released.

Judge Eaton says Noonan called him and told of the arrest. Noonan, he says, said Bankert had recommended the release.

Eaton says he then called Bankert, and the two discussed the merits of the case, after which Eaton okayed the release.

"If Bankert had said anything (to the contrary), I never would have released him," Judge Eaton said. "I would never release anybody arrested for a felony if the police have any problems with it."

SAVE's impact — it's no big deal

The SAVE initiative, upheld by the state Supreme Court last week, is not likely to have any effect on the two cities whose citizens enacted it in April, 1972.

That was the surmise from two top city officials yesterday.

The SAVE initiative rewrote the zoning city ordinances so that no residential building permits would be issued unless the city was caught up on school classrooms without double sessions and a well-functioning sewage treatment plant.

Asked if the SAVE ordinance could take effect in Livermore in the near future, Livermore Director of Community Development Manny Gorland said SAVE would be a moot point right now.

It's obvious the real threat to growth in Livermore is the proposed cease and desist order against the city's sewage treatment plant. The plant is contributing its share of pollution to downstream water and the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board wants to shut it off at 4.7 million gallons per day, though its capacity is 5 mgd.

There are 50 sewer permits out now and they would not be affected by the connection ban. The ban could be lifted if and when the city (in conjunction with LAVWMA presumably) would present a satisfactory plan to stop the pollution of downstream water.

Even the threat of a ban has given potential developers cold feet, said vices gives Pleasanton plenty of legal underpinnings for the growth management plan, said Edgar.

Edgar doubts SAVE will ever be invoked in Pleasanton. The city faced a cease and desist order on its Sunol Boulevard treatment plant in October, 1971, months before the SAVE ordinance was passed. The SAVE ordinance said to "stop growth when you have a problem with growth, but after the cease and desist order we had no more growth and no more problem," said Edgar.

With the breather from growth, the city drew up its general plan review and adopted a much lower holding capacity plus a growth rate. The city council already was on top of the situation and that's why Pleasanton did not join Livermore in appealing the builders' challenge to SAVE to higher courts, said Edgar.

Right now the north side of Pleasanton is in the same boat as Livermore because the area sewers into the VCSD sewage treatment plant. That plant also faces a cease and desist order today. There are approximately 200 sewer permits outstanding in the Pleasanton area and after that it's zero growth in north Pleasanton until LAVWMA finds a way to solve the sewer effluent problem in the valley. Combined with the 100 residential units to be permitted next year on the city's south side, it means an additional 300 units next year. That compares to 603 units in 1975 and 178 through Nov. 30.

VCSD gets conflict code tonight

DUBLIN — A revised conflict of interest code regarding employees of the Valley Community District (VCSD) will be reviewed by the VCSD board of directors tonight at 7:30 p.m.

The basic theory of the VCSD code directs employees holding certain positions to declare their conflicts of interest.

The conflicts involved are those which could foreseeably have a material effect on an employee's financial interest where decision making is concerned.

Directive definitions are based on Political Reform Act of 1974. Regulations of the Fair Political Practices Commission were used as reference.

Various categories of investments, gifts and sources of income must be declared.

VCSD attorneys, Wilson, Jones, Morton and Lynch have suggested modifications to the VCSD code.

"We particularly wish to draw your attention to Sections 1.5(i) and 2.1 of the proposed Code. These sections require, in effect, that designated employees under the Code disclose all interests held by them within the particular categories of interests assigned to them. The question of whether a decision of the designated employee could 'foreseeably' or 'materially' affect a financial interest of the employee is not left to the determination of the particular designated employee."

Some hard questions, questions this commission isn't asking."

In contrast to previous public hearings, testimony at yesterday's finale went beyond the debate over New Town.

Both sides in the fight over future development in Dublin had their say, with Briarhills Homeowners Association spokesman Pete Haggerty chiding the commission for failing to stick with its old plan. He said the commission's and the board of supervisors' "select zoning" has hurt the unincorporated community. He wants a realistic plan county government will uphold.

Mike Roach, a spokesman for Haggerty's opponents, claimed there would be a surplus of homes, not business, in 1995 Dublin.

VALLEY NEWS BRIEFS

SF Club gutted

A five-alarm fire reportedly triggered by an explosion destroyed the prestigious St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco late Monday, fire officials said.

Flames were reported leaping 50 feet into the air over the waterfront club, and fire boats were called in to battle the flames, along with trucks.

Ambulances were called to the scene, and at least one person was transported to a hospital for treatment, a hospital spokesman said.

The first alarm was turned in at 9:40 p.m. and the fifth less than half an hour later, firemen said. There was no immediate word on the exact cause of the fire.

Decision on sewer ban

The decision whether to impose a sewer hookup ban against Valley Community Services District and the City of Livermore will be made today.

The full Regional Water Quality Control Board will convene at 9:30 a.m. in the Assembly Room at 1111 Jackson St. in Oakland to rule on a recommendation that the ban be implemented. A public hearing will be held to determine if the ban, recommended by a three-member hearing panel of the full board, should be imposed.

Ex-Lab boss opposed

Some congressional Democrats and elements of the defense establishment oppose the nomination of Harold Brown, former Lawrence Livermore Laboratory chief, as the next Secretary of Defense.

Critics mobilized against Brown after it was rumored that President-elect Jimmy Carter would name the one-time top Pentagon official to his cabinet.

They fault Brown for his performance as technical adviser to the U.S. negotiations on strategic arms limitations. The group prefers former Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger.

Carter has vowed to name his entire cabinet by Christmas.

Gas up for holiday

Californians should have little difficulty obtaining gasoline over the holidays, the California State Automobile Association said Monday.

The auto club's monthly survey showed that more gas stations will close on Christmas Day than any other time, but an adequate number will be open along principal travel routes.

Motorists planning trips Christmas Eve or Christmas Day are advised to fill up the day before, however.

The survey also showed no appreciable change in state gas prices over the last 30 days.

December prices for nationally or regionally advertised brands in central-northern California and Nevada at full service outlets average 65.4 cents for regular grade, 69.3 cents for premium, and 67.8 cents for nolead products, the auto club reported.

Commission postpones New Town vote

Alameda County Bureau

HAYWARD — Fears the county planning commission would rush through a general plan amendment favorable to the "New Town" proposal apparently were allayed yesterday after commissioners voted unanimously to postpone their final decision until mid-January.

Commissioner William Carpenter sent waves of apprehension through the valley last week when he called for an end to public hearings and intimated he wanted a decisive commission vote by the end of this month.

Opponents of Harlan Geldermann's proposed "New Town" in the Las Positas Valley feared the commission would hand its approval to county supervisors in time for a last minute vote before the board majority changes the first of the year.

The commission and ultimately the board must decide on staff recommended alternatives that range from full development of Geldermann's controversial 45,000 population community and no development in the existing cities to total development of New Town and the cities of Livermore and Pleasanton.

Livermore City Attorney Gary Reinert said he was relieved at the commission's final decision to close the hearings but continue deliberations to Jan. 18. But he still will keep close tabs on the proceedings.

Attorney Maurice Engel, who represented Livermore in its successful defense of the SAVE (Save All Valley Environments) initiative and its challenge to the 1974 county general plan amendment favorable to New Town, said he wants answers to some hard questions.

"I would like to submit interrogatories to the developers," he said. "No questions have yet been asked of the developers about the regional picture."

Engel said he challenges claims New Town would house the spectrum of income groups and ease city center pressures.

"Putting $60,000 and $45,000 houses in that area is not getting to the heart of the problem," said Engel, who claims New Town's development would further deteriorate the core cities. "I'm not interested in delay. I'm interested in answers to

Another phony $20 bill passed in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON — The second counterfeit $20 bill found in Pleasanton in a month was discovered by the owner of Something's Fishy Pet Store, 2835 Hopyard Road Thursday, police reported.

A man had just paid $18 for a pair of grey Zebra finches when owner Steven Oldfield noticed that the $20 bill handed to him didn't look normal. After a close inspection, both Oldfield and the customer agreed the bill was phony. The customer, a Navy man stationed at Moffett Field, said he received the bill when he cashed his paycheck at the base.

On Nov. 28, a clerk at Grutman's clothing store on Santa Rita Road was given one of the bogus bills.

Police say the bills are circulating out of San Francisco and Oakland, but are beginning to appear in outlying suburban areas.

Real bills are sharp around critical detail areas, such as behind the portrait or along border patterns. The paper usually contains red and blue threads.

The bogus bills are distinguished by a cheaper feel and fuzziness in detail areas. The green ink is oft a brighter color than normal, and no threads are visible in white areas.

Anyone receiving a suspect bill should contact police immediately and attempt to get a good description of the person passing the bill.

Canary Drive resident arrests burglary suspect

LIVERMORE — A Canary Drive resident who heard noises outside his home early Saturday arrested a 15-year-old boy who had allegedly taken a $435 generator from the man's truck, police reported.

Police arrived at the home to find Earl Lawrence Wells holding the suspect. Police said the youth had apparently taken one of several generators from the truck and attempted to ride off with the device across his bike's handlebars when stopped by Wells.

The youth was booked on suspicion of burglary.

Coinboxes ripped off machines at Rhonewood apartments

LIVERMORE — Burglars made off with an unknown amount of cash after prying coinboxes from several washing machines at the Rhonewood apartments on Charlotte Way Friday.

Police said that attempts had also been made to pry coinboxes from dryers, but none had been taken. Police lifted one fingerprint from the machines.

Fire causes major damage on Plaza Avenue

LIVERMORE — A fire of unknown origin caused an estimated $27,000 damage to a house at 833 Plaza Ave. just after midnight Sunday morning, fire officials reported.

The fire apparently started near the couch in the living room, and spread to the kitchen and roof. Approximately $10,000 damage to furnishings and $17,000 to the house itself resulted.

No members of the Albert Jones family were present at the time, and no injuries were reported.

Unlocked door leads to $250 burglary

LIVERMORE — Burglars apparently entered an unlocked sliding glass door to Alvin Du Charme's Mendocino Drive residence Saturday evening and took $250 in rolled coins, police reported.

Police said $250 in rolled coins were taken from two boxes in a bedroom.

Officers said the same burglars probably ransacked a Montecito Way residence at about the same time, breaking a cedar chest, cracking a TV screen and causing other damage.

There are no suspects.

Hearing set in barroom brawl

LIVERMORE — Three men have been scheduled to return to the local municipal court Feb. 2 for a preliminary hearing on felony assault charges stemming from a bar fight which sent five people to the hospital in August.

Charged with starting a fight at Granucci's Tavern Aug. 29, are Alfred Marulio Gutierrez, 39, of Oakland; Kenneth Brown Ranney, 27, of 927 Jefferson Ave., Livermore; and his brother Bruce Lyman Ranney, 34, 642 South O St., Livermore.

According to police reports of the incident, words were exchanged between the suspects and a group of men across the bar. The suspects reportedly left the bar, returned in three minutes and asked one man to go outside; he refused, and Gutierrez allegedly began swinging a bandana, with a one pound lead weight inside, at the victims.

Receiving treatment for head wounds after the attack were David Moyles, 38, 8062 Arroyo Rd. and John and Robert Adian, 4935 Golden Road, all of Pleasanton; John Woods, 22, of Fresno; and Peter Kuber, 26, of Tracy.

Police recovered a yellow, blood-stained bandana at the scene. Wrapped inside was the lead ball, police said. In other court action:

— Paul Gene Gasaway, 38, and Joyce Ann Gasaway, 3825 Harvard, Livermore, pleaded not guilty to taking a tractor which Frederick Courtwright had parked in the Wells Fargo parking lot Dec. 6.

— Roosevelt Smith, 30, Oakland, pleaded not guilty to charges of escaping from Santa Rita prison June 28 by dressing in civilian clothes, getting into a car driven by his visiting wife, Betty Grable Smith, 29, and leaving the facility.

He is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Friday. — Ronald Steven Jones, 26, pleaded not guilty to charges he burglarized the apartment of Russell Camacho, 7323 Starwood, Dublin, and took stereo speakers, radio, eight track and cassette players, a turntable and a mirror.

Jones had been arrested by Contra Costa County deputies Dec. 1 and charged with five counts of burglary in that jurisdiction.

He is scheduled for a court appearance tomorrow.

Rescue

Rescue workers place an injured Castro Valley man on a stretcher after he reportedly lost control of his car, ran off the road and slammed into a utility pole Friday night. Highway patrol officers said Russell Lee Jones, 31, and his passenger, Bruce Leroy Hesla, 37, of Oakland, were both injured when their car hit a pole where South Livermore Avenue curves into Tesla Road. Hesla was treated for minor bruises and released. Jones remains in satisfactory condition in Valley Memorial Hospital.

Police seek robbery suspect

DUBLIN — Sheriff's deputies are looking for a man who robbed $450 from the Corwood Carwash Dec. 13 after hitting an employee on the head with a tire iron.

The suspect is described as a white male about 18, 5-foot-10, 160 pounds, with light brown hair parted in the middle covering his ears, wearing blue jeans and a blue windbreaker jacket.

According to reports, the man entered the Corwood Carwash office about 8 p.m. Dec. 13, after the business had closed for the day, and began talking to the sole employee.

The employee was counting the day's receipts while the man asked to make a change in a job application form he said was filled out earlier. When the employee turned around, the man hit him with a tire iron, scooped up the money and fled on foot.

The victim had a deep gash on his head, deputies said.

Any information of the suspect can be confidentially given to deputies by calling 829-3881 during the day, or 828-5400 at night.

LIVERMORE — The kinder gym movement is looking for a home here.

Officials of the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District met with an enthusiastic group of parents last week and have decided to look for the appropriate facility to set up special gymnastic equipment scaled down for the junior set.

The program, when started, would allow youngsters from one to five, a place to go with one or both parents for either structured or unstructured exploration of body movement.

The actual plans have not been put together by LARPD officials, who contemplate balancing beams, climbing ladders, tumbling mats in a large room where the tots can learn "how to run and jump, clap their hands, fall down and get up," according to Deanna Manning, recreation superintendent.

"It is clear there is a great deal of community interest," Manning told The Times. She said 35 people met with her last week, "at a time when it is hard to get people out this time of year."

No race to file for board

Only two persons have filed to date for school board elections in the Murray, Pleasanton, Amador and Sunol Glen districts.

The two are incumbent Linda Jeffery and Linda Cooley in the Murray School District.

No prospective candidates have surfaced in Pleasanton, where the terms of three board members expire in March of next year. They are Al Dutchover, board president, Karen Finn and Dennis Reidy. The latter has already indicated he would probably seek his first full term.

In the Amador district, only person to pickup papers thus far is Frank Damerval.

Amador will also have three openings since the terms of Wally Decker, board president, Jack Delaney and Wayne Barnes expire in March.

Both the San Ramon and Livermore school districts anticipate wide-open races with three vacancies in San Ramon and four in the latter.

Only San Ramon incumbent who has made a decision to run again, at this time, is Harold Zuckerman, board president.

Multi flavored faire

Lu Ulom and fifth grade classes at Valley View School organized and hosted a Banquet Internationale last week at the school in Pleasanton, which included a wide variety of dishes from many countries. Children brought dishes denoting their ancestry and also held a program to tell about Christmas customs. All decorating was done by students.

One of the trends in education in recent years has been the older adult returning to the college classroom.

In a great many cases it's a woman who's reared her children and seeks greater fulfillment via a new career.

June Vieira is such a woman, though June is candid in admitting that she also returned to college to obtain a degree for practical reasons.

Presently a valued and highly - skilled instructional aide at Amador Valley High School, June finds working with high school-age students both exhilarating and challenging.

She is now in her seventh year as an instructional aide, working in the English and Social Science areas. She also assists Jack Ogden with the debate team.

"I discovered a number of years ago that the thing I like to do best is teach," June says.

She started college in '48 at Northeastern University in Boston as a mechanical engineering major.

But after three years of school she married and had three children. "In the process I learned I liked children and like to teach."

She came to California in 1957 and served as an aide at Pleasanton School while her children were going through the school system.

June returned to college a year ago at Cal State Hayward with a major change to history.

And while she is completing requirements for a degree so are her three children, all mindful of the great advantages of a college education like their mother.

Jeffery is a student at UC Davis and majoring in plant science, Bob is a chemistry major at UC San Diego and Stephanie (now Mrs. Stephanie Reynolds) an anthropology student at UC Berkeley. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were previously in the Peace Corps in Malaysia.

"They're making full use of their education but they're realistic," comments June in mentioning that the shortage of teacher jobs has turned them to looking to other career fields.

Not so Mrs. Vieira, who hopes to continue as an instructional aide next year after obtaining her degree in history. She is undecided on whether she'll go for a full teaching credential.

Her daily duties include working with students reading at the second grade level as well as the great bulk who are at high school level. "I do a lot of remedial work," she adds, in way of explanation.

While a bright spot in her day is helping Jack Ogden with the debate team, she quickly adds that "the most important thing I do is trying to provide the remedial student with the assistance he'll need in order to survive."

It is little wonder that June Vieira is held in such high regard amongst not only the many students she has helped but her teaching associates. —by Al Fischer

MUSIC MEN OF LIVER CITY

Giants are abroad in the fair city of Livermore. They're ten feet tall, and teach music in the elementary and junior high schools. And they do wondrous things. Some of us were fortunate enough to see and hear the magic they weave with children and music, at the annual Christmas program at Sonoma Ave. School last Wednesday.

All of us who for years have attended the choral concerts and musical nights put on by our school music departments, have received one of the community's richest gifts.

We all know that music is good for us, whether we play it, or listen to it. And the discipline of learning music is good for us. It develops qualities of patience, and courage and the ability to work closely and cooperatively with others, qualities much needed in a crowded world.

Dave Walter has a special way with beginners. Somehow he is able to keep the little musicians playing, even after the parents have given up. The magic moment comes when the children, with their horns, are arrayed across the school stage for the annual Christmas blow-out.

The spotlight is on Susy with the chubby cheeks, who is looking smug and feeling beautiful in her long skirt Mom made especially for this performance. And there are her Mom and Dad and Grandpa and Grandmom down in the first row, looking pleased. Baby brother is there too crawling around under the seats, chewing on people's shoelaces.

And little Johnny is up there in the second row, with a really confident expression on his clean face, his hair slicked down and feeling like a real musician just in time for his first performance.

Mr. Walter raises his hand, after a few appropriate words of explanation to the audience, and the most wonderfully dissonant sound emerges and fills the hall. They give their all. They play scales. They play Twinkle Twinkle. They really PLAY. And the beginning musicians have made their debut. There is an enormous roar of applause from the audience, an explosion of gaiety. Everyone in sight is beaming with approval: big brothers, grandmothers, moms and dads, babies, teachers and friends. WHAT A NIGHT!

The kids file off the stage, making the hall even more festive with their smiles. There is a very relaxed, even casual feeling in the multi-purpose room. There seem to be hundreds of people there. And sitting there I have this sense of community. Though the auditorium is packed, unfortunately most of the seating is on those very clever, but uncomfortable lunch-room tables which turn into rows of hard seats. The lucky latecomers get folding chairs or stand around the sides. But discomfort aside, the music goes on, and a group of slightly older musicians take their place in the spotlight. They, too, are a big hit and we all feel exalted.

Dan Chambers comes on with the Junior High School musicians and the Bluenotes, a group of students from several different schools. They turn out to be fantastic. The beginners, now lounging around the sides keep their ears open, probably dreaming of the day they get that good.

Mr. Chambers really exerts himself. And he and the kids have a blast. One exceptional portion was devoted to improvisation by the young musicians. This is one occasion when kids are actually encouraged to be creative. True, it's within a well defined framework, but still, it is something. And it is exciting, because they came through real well. It takes courage to bring forth music on the spot, with no notes or direction to go by. Let's hope this is the beginning of a new era, when creativity is encouraged, rather than squelched in our schools.

The program is over in what seems like a very short time, and everyone streams out of the hall full of satisfaction, and feeling distinctly richer for having been there. Dave Walter and Dan Chambers, musicians and teachers, have once again made us aware of the gift of music. Christmas feelings of love and joy fill us, and the knowledge that man can be a nobler creature, as the giants stride into the night.

She restores dolls

He recycles bikes between tee-offs

By Lucy Hobgood-Brown

Arch Clausnitzer moved to Pleasanton 29 years ago this January 15. He first played golf in 1952. He was manager of the local Bank of America for 23 years until he retired in May of 1970. It takes him about one day to take apart an old bicycle and clean it — and when he says "about one day," you feel relieved at first that his amazing ability to remember details DOES slip now and then!

Surprised? Acquaintances aren't — they know that today golf probably comes first for the retired banker, so hobbies like rehabilitating bicycles are simply fit in around tee-offs.

Along with his wife Louise, who helped found Valley Memorial Hospital's Thrift Shop, Mr. Clausnitzer puts in many long hours every week making old things look brand new. He specializes in bicycles, taking them apart and cleaning them, then polishing, painting and adjusting the gears and brakes. "He really began to enjoy it when he saw the expression on a little boy's face as he rode one of Arch's bicycles," says his wife.

More than one family will visit the Thrift Shop in Livermore to buy inexpensive Christmas presents this year. Not only are bicycles sold for less than half their original price, but sometimes even brand new clothing and children's games are available. Run by the Women's Auxiliary, the Thrift Shop is staffed by volunteers like Louise Clausnitzer who take great pride in the fact that their initiative puts thousands of dollars every year into various hospital projects.

A past president of the Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. Clausnitzer devotes much of the time in her busy volunteer schedule to preserving dolls. Through the years, she has learned to spot the valuable ones, but has also developed a knack of making even the most time-worn a clean, lovely gift any child would enjoy. Tiny wardrobes and matching accessories are sewn, often by hand, while the dolls patiently wear rollers in anticipation of entirely new images!

Although the Clausniters find ample opportunity to enjoy traveling throughout the United States — and golfing — the Pleasanton couple spends most of their time donating their skills to the Thrift Shop. They are an active, vital example of what the Christmas Spirit could be if it were practiced year-round!

Valley residents interested in rehabilitating items for the Thrift Shop or donating items may call volunteers working at the building, located on hospital grounds, at 447-4703.

Retired banker Arch Clausnitzer rehabilitates old bicycles for the Thrift Shop, often selling them for less than half their original price.

The Valley Volunteer Bureau has announced holiday office hours. The bureau, located at 287 Rose Ave., Pleasanton, will be open Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to noon this week and next week (Dec. 20-22 and 27-29). The bureau serves as a clearing-house for volunteer needs throughout the valley, and may be reached at 462-3570.

At night I-580 is long lines and short nerves

Speed up for a long haul

Hope for I-580 commuters

DUBLIN — At 5 p.m. Friday afternoons it is still the world's longest parking lot. I-580, the Dublin canyon from Foothill Road to Castro Valley, is beginning to fade, however, as a Bay Area bottleneck.

Honk the horn and shout. You can now mail a letter in Pleasanton, and beat it to Hayward in your car. Soon commuting will cease to be a full-time job. Oh, there will be slow-downs. Someone will have a flat tire and five-miles of rubberneckers will drive past in first gear, shaking heads piteously.

But the mammoth construction effort on I-580 is already paying dividends to commuters whose nerves went bankrupt long ago. The morning drive from Dublin to Castro Valley takes only 10 minutes most days. Those first three miles up Dublin grade feature three-lane road. It dwindles to two lanes past the summit, but then it's a downhill glide to Castro Valley. Even diesel trucks can fly it.

Evening return trips east are still a headache. The uphill climb is a two-lane gum-masher.

Two-thirds of the canyon widening project are complete, however, so before long it will be liveable in either direction.

It'll be a while before all those San Francisco secretaries and stock brokers make it home in time for dinner. But at least they don't arrive at work any more, sour as that first cup of coffee.

Three lanes make the uphill climb easier

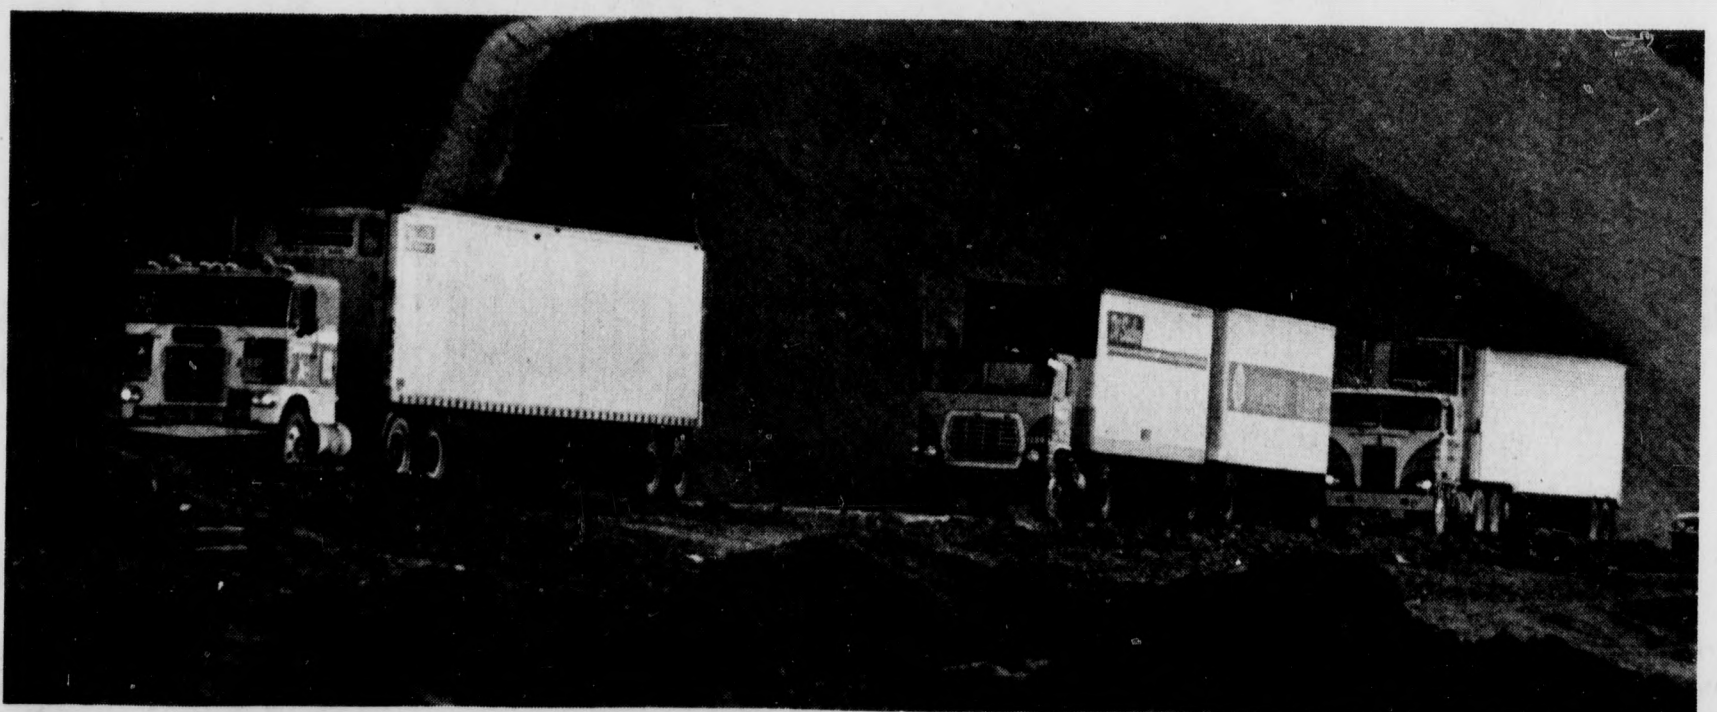

By day, however, commuting is tolerable

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing to you in regard to surgery which I had eight years ago for a diverticulum. After the surgery I was placed on a bland diet and suffered gas pains until I started using your bulk program. Now I am practically free of gas, so would lettuce salads included in my diet be all right? I am dying to consume a lettuce or tossed salad.

DEAR READER — Gas pains are often a symptom of spastic colon. Many authorities think a spastic colon leads to forming those pesky pockets of the colon called diverticula. A diet that includes plenty of cereal fiber in bran and bran products often helps relieve the problem. Those wretched bland diets that were commonly prescribed for colon problems and diverticulosis until a few years ago actually made the problem worse. I am not surprised that you had symptoms from gas.

Once the colon resumes normal functioning you should be able to return to a near-normal diet. Go ahead and try lettuce in a small amount for several days, and if all goes well increase the amount to the level you wish to include in your diet.

Even if you eat some gas-forming foods, normal colon function will keep the gas from being trapped and causing symptoms. To give you more information about the causes of gas and gas symptoms I am sending you The Health Letter, 6-8, Controlling Gaseousness. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very much concerned about the number of young people who are controlling their weight by upchucking. My daughter does this about three or four times a week, whenever she feels she has over-eaten. She tells me many of her friends do this too. She is almost 20 years old.

Will this cause her trouble in later years? Is it injurious? DEAR READER — Isn't it a shame with so many people not having enough to eat that people in our society engage in over-eating then vomiting? It certainly says something about the self-discipline of our comfort-, pleasure-bent society.

The practice is not new. The ancient Romans did it during their orgies. A person would eat and drink to capacity, leave the banquet scene, relieve himself and return to gorge again.

The first danger is that forceful vomiting may cause a tear of the lower esophagus. This can cause severe hemorrhage and is a medical emergency.

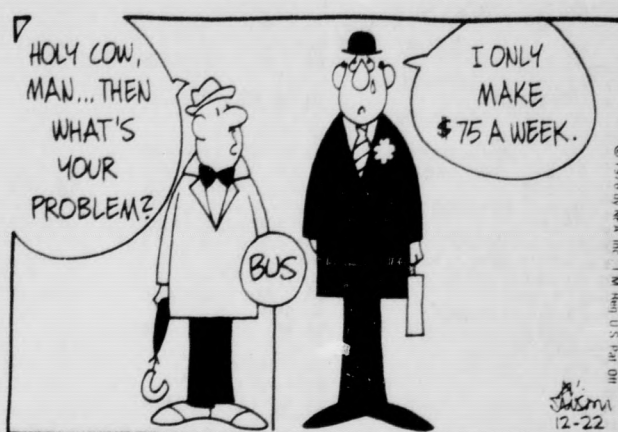

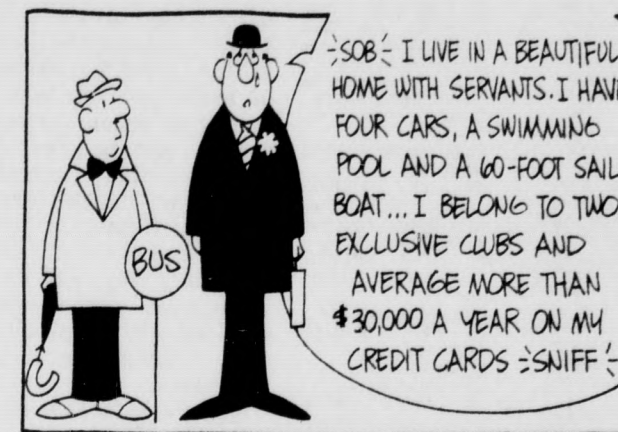

The next and more likely problem is that individuals engaging in this practice to stay thin may over do it and slip into "anorexia nervosa," a disorder of not eating, or even vomiting to the point that serious starvation occurs. This then becomes a major psychiatric problem as well as a nutritional disorder.

The obvious solution is not to eat so much. Some young girls in particular become obsessed with being thin and have a mistaken idea about their own body. They think they are fat when in reality they are thin. We all have a mental image of our body, but in these young girls the body image is often distorted from reality.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW ARE SYNTHETIC DIAMONDS MADE?"

A. SYNTHETIC DIAMONDS ARE MADE IN A SPECIAL PRESS THAT SQUEEZES CARBON UNDER GREAT HEAT AND PRESSURE. THE TIGHTLY PACKED CARBON MOLECULES FORM INTO SAND-SIZED CRYSTALS.

MIKE ZAMORA
UVALDE, TX

Not all diamonds are mined. Today scientists have learned to make diamonds.

Diamonds are crystals of carbon that have been subjected to tremendous pressure and heat.

In nature, diamonds are formed in dying volcanoes. As the molten lava cools, great pressure and heat act on the carbon found in the lava. Under this great pressure and heat, the molecules of carbon pack tightly together to form clear crystals.

Synthetic, or man-made, diamonds are made in much the same way. They are produced in a special press that squeezes carbon at a pressure of over 3 million pounds to the square inch. It also generates temperatures of over 9,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The pressure and heat turn the carbon into diamonds.

Man-made diamonds are usually no larger than grains of sand. Because of their dark color and imperfections, they have no value as gems, but they are used for polishing and grinding.

For Tuesday, Dec. 21, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extra-tactful with business associates today. They may be more sensitive than usual. An extra pat on the back will go a long way to smooth your path.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're better at planning today than in execution. The way you foresee things is fine, but you'll hit a snag in carrying them out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Give your duties top priority today. You'll be considerably more relaxed if you get your work out of the way, then go do your fun thing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be sure the plans you make today have the prior approval of your mate. You will only cause unnecessary friction by thinking too singularly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make allowances for the frailties of your subordinates today. Being too demanding will only frustrate you and put them on the defensive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Speculative ventures appeal to you today, but be sure to have full knowledge of what's entailed. Otherwise, back off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Those genuinely fond of you are generous today, but you may not reciprocate in kind. Remember, giving and taking is a two-way street.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When you're refreshed and well-rested, you move ahead in a very positive manner. Get on things early. You have a negative approach when tired.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could find yourself in a situation where more is expected of you than you feel impelled to give. You may do it against your better judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It would be unwise to try to manipulate friends to achieve your own goals today. Keep business and pleasure separated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Set aside any doubts about new methods or innovative techniques today. Failure to try them is tantamount to defeating yourself before you begin.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let your Christmas list get out of hand today. A card will be as welcome as a gift in some instances.

Dec. 21, 1976

You should be alert this coming year for an unusual opportunity that can be both exciting and profitable. It could come from a friend who deals in offbeat things.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

As we have said time and time again in this column, the expert gives himself a little extra chance whenever possible. Sometimes that little extra chance makes the difference between failure and success.

A first glance at the dummy shows South that he has four potential losers. A trump loser if the finesse fails; two hearts and one diamond.

If he has to play hearts himself he will get away with only one loser in that suit if he can find East with both king and queen or with a doubleton honor. He can also expect to get away with one loser if he can get the opponents to play hearts for him.

There is also an extra chance. Can you see it?

South wins the club lead in dummy and loses a trump finesse. He ruffs the club return; enters dummy with a trump; leads a low diamond and sticks in his nine to force West's ace. Another club is ruffed; the queen of diamonds led and a heart chucked from dummy.

East takes his king, but South is home. He will be able to discard dummy's other losing heart on the jack of diamonds.

Ask the Jacobys

A Mississippi reader wants to know if the three-diamond bid is a force in the partnership bidding sequence: one heart, one spade, two diamonds, two notrump, three diamonds.

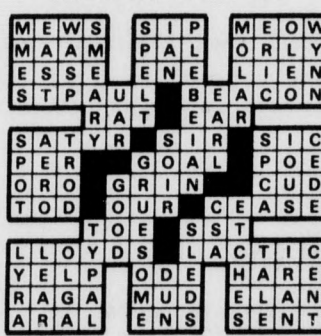

This is a matter for partnership agreement. We play it as a force as do most other players.

(Do you have a question or the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The battle lines are being drawn for what is expected to be a hot and heavy battle over how California will preserve its steadily dwindling prime farmland.

In one corner is Charles Warren, the Los Angeles Democrat who is chairman of the Assembly Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee. About 120,000 acres of farmland are lost annually to urban sprawl in recent years, he says.

In the other, Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, a Concord Democrat whose position as chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee carries plenty of clout. His chief ally is Sen. George Zenovich, D-Fresno.

And the referee is bound to be Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., whose adviser on the matter, Agriculture and Services Agency chief Rose Bird, is waiting for the smoke to clear.

But Bird has been active in discussions with those in the Boatwright-Zenovich corner, including the state Chamber of Commerce, and groups representing big farmers, cattlemen and county supervisors.

Warren's chief backers have been the League of California Cities and such environmental groups as the Sierra Club.

Next month, when the 1977-78 legislative session gets under way in earnest, Warren will propose a bill virtually identical to his measure that died in a Senate committee last summer.

Boatwright and Zenovich will counter with a measure somewhat similar to a Zenovich bill that was killed by Warren's committee in the last session.

"Both bills will have a lot of overlap, but there are significant differences," said Jerry Scribner, Ms. Bird's counsel. "No, she's not taking sides. She's anxious to remain neutral and see what evolves. It's a little early in the game to be choosing sides."

Brown did not endorse Warren's bill in the 1975-76 session. But Gray Davis, the Democratic governor's top aide, said the administration helped it pass the Assembly and Brown tried to force a compromise just before its demise.

Warren said two days before the bill was killed he heard that Brown was huddling with the measure's foes. "I got there late, and as soon as I entered the room, I realized the deck was stacked against me," Warren said in an interview this week.

Boatwright said in a separate interview that he felt Brown would have vetoed Warren's bill because it would create another expensive state agency, and would have stifled the already staggered construction industry with a moratorium on building.

"I don't want to make predictions, but some of the people in the administration like this approach better," Boatwright said of his proposal, which would retain more local control of zoning and include all farmland, including grazing land.

The Boatwright-Zenovich measure, prepared for them largely by the state Chamber of Commerce, would require cities and counties to develop agriculture land preservation plans by April 1, 1979. A state-level review board would have the final say, unless the city or county wanted to go to court.

All the land designated for preservation would be placed under Williamson Act tax provisions, which is a law reducing taxes for 10-year periods with penalty payments if the land is developed.

Warren said his approach is the only one that would effectively protect prime farmland, which he said is being lost at the alarming rate of 120,000 acres a year in California.

"There must be enforceable restriction, and that can only be done when you provide for a reviewing system by the state. My bill says the only decision reviewed is removal of prime agricultural land for development. It is an enforceable rule that the county assessor can't ignore."

Warren said his new bill will retain the amendment that won League of California Cities endorsement — and angered counties. It would let cities "go ahead with all proposed development for 10 years, then draw a line and not go beyond it," Warren said.

County supervisors, who traditionally have more influence on Senate votes than they do on the municipal-oriented Assembly, don't want city councils deciding what land within the counties are zoned for agriculture.

Boatwright said, "I think our bill is even broader than the Charlie Warren bill. Farmland is farmland, whether you grow tomatoes or graze cattle. If you preserve farmland, you should preserve all of it."

"His bill will be a death blow for the building trades in California. Everything is frozen under his bill until plans are final, until the certification is done. That's 18 months to two years, realistically," Boatwright said.

Jim Van Marin, director of the Chamber of Commerce's agriculture department, said a key difference is the definition of prime farmland.

He said Warren deals only with prime growing land, about 10 million acres, but the Boatwright-Zenovich approach encompasses some 28 million acres, including 10 million acres of grazing land and eight million acres of non-prime farmland.

"We feel very strongly that you cannot put a line around one type of farmer on that prime land and discriminate against the other agriculturalist," Van Marin said. "We feel if a farmer is producing crops, making a reasonable return on his investment, he is contributing to society and his land should be protected just as much as the prime land."

Warren said Boatwright's statement that his bill would add to the bureaucracy and create a moratorium "is a red herring."

Further, he said, if every city and county can have its own plan, "that's 500 different plans. One wonders when they got through if there'd be any prime land left."

He also is a critic of the Williamson Act, which he said gives tax breaks to owners of land that isn't close to being threatened by developers. And he said a local government can — and has — waived penalty tax payments and allowed owners to develop their land.

"One questions their motivation when they ignore legal realities I've just described," Warren said. "It seems such a proposal is nothing more than a diversionary tactic to prevent a serious effort to preserve California's prime agricultural land."

"I think everyone agrees you have to preserve at least your best farmland, but developers and speculators, the fast-buck people who see it as an effort threatening private interest, are doing everything possible to prevent us from achieving agricultural land preservation."

Warren did not rule out a compromise, but he indicated he will be tough to deal with.

"I'm not worried about the means, but the end result," he said. "If they can show me a better way, then God bless them, and I'll rally around their banner. But when the persons holding the banner are development interests, the Chamber of Commerce, building contractors, I get a little suspicious."

Sinatra Jr. was mellow

LIVERMORE — "He does have beautiful eyes," said one woman in the front, as Frank Sinatra Jr. walked on stage at the Holiday Inn Friday.

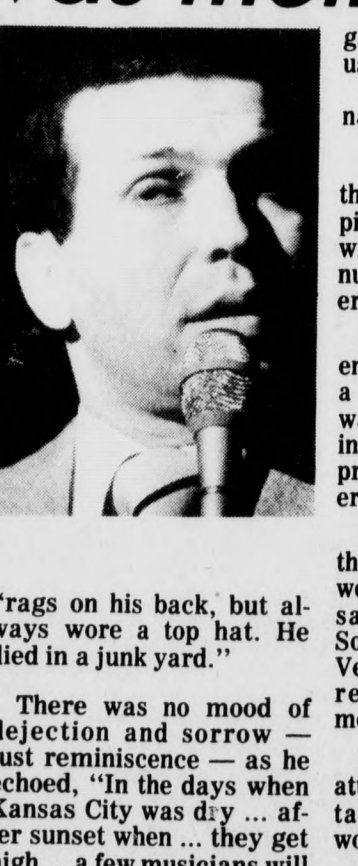

By the time the singer was finished with his act, backed by the Larry O'Brian Orchestra, the woman said, "He sings well too."

From the moment Sinatra started his first song, "Steppin' Out," — and winking at another pretty lady in the front — he was smooth, relaxed and mellow.

People like to compare him to Frank Sr., but he's so much different. This 33-year-old entertainer doesn't have to belt out his lungs to produce a nice voice. He just gets relaxed, walks on stage after double checking the sound equipment, and lets loose with his feelings.

The orchestra was snappy, each member tooting, plinking or blowing an occasional solo number.

Sinatra even tried his hand at some blues, recalling an old, poor jazz singer Lord Buckley who had gather round a dirty dive... usually one flight down."

His blues had a resonance, a successful revival.

But, just as swiftly, thumping trumpet and tapping drums would combine with his baritone voice for a number that called for fast-toe tapping.

Sinatra played to audiences at a dinner show and a late night show. Afterwards, he met with friends in his third floor suite, and praised Innkeeper Al Souders.

"He went to more trouble than most hotel managers would for a one nighter," said Sinatra, noting that Souders came from Las Vegas where "those guys really know entertainment."

He predicted Souders' attempt to bring top entertainment to Livermore would pay off.

Bus stop shelter top item

PLEASANTON — An AC Transit bus shelter at First and Vineyard Avenue rates the highest priority with the planning commission, that group decided last week.

The commission reviewed designs for AC Transit shelters and commented that the First and Vineyard location is tops because it is near high density residential uses more inclined to use bus transit, especially senior citizens living in two special projects for the aging nearby.

A location at First and Neal Streets was rated number two priority. Other locations on Hopwood Road were rated further down the scale. The recommendation will be passed on to the city council.

His movie becomes real

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Green Eyes," a TV movie about a half-black, half-Vietnamese kid whose father, a former GI, returns to Saigon to search for him will air Monday night at 9 p.m. on Channels 7, 11 and 13.

That is unusual, because of ABC's reluctance to air any drama remotely connected to the Vietnam war and because of its tendency to produce such ratings-getting fluff as "Charlie's Angels."

But equally unusual is the way David Seltzer's work on the movie led to his adoption of two Vietnamese orphans, one a paraplegic girl, the other a brash, cocky lad who used to hawk newspapers in Saigon.

Seltzer, married and the father of two kids, Tim, 7, and Emily, 8, says he hadn't adoption in mind when he went to Saigon in the fall of 1973, when America's long involvement in the Vietnam war was ending.

He initially went there simply to gather material for a movie about the thousands of Vietnamese children left homeless and without parents because of the war.

But Seltzer, 36, writer and coproducer of "Green Eyes," said he found himself so moved by the misery, the desperation of the children, "I began pretending I wasn't there on behalf of an entertainment show."

"I just kind of fell into the swim of working with the orphans there, started working with the Vietnamese-American Children's Fund, which ran two orphanages there."

"A friend of mine, Ben Cunningham, who ran one of the orphanages, really took me through the underbelly of Saigon, showed me what life was like under the surface there. And I began spending all my expense money for the children, kept coming back for more."

It was during his work with the kids, he said, he found Phuong, now about nine.

Enter the newspaper boy, Trung, now about 12. He knew Seltzer as a good customer "and he attached himself to me," the writer said, adding jokingly that "he recognized an easy touch."

But the lad also helped him, wheeling and dealing in Saigon "to get little things for Phuong that I hadn't been able to find myself."

"And I realized he was wonderful material for whatever I was going to write. He didn't know what I was up to at first, but I eventually told him I was making a movie and he'd play himself in it."

"We exchanged addresses and he figured he'd find me again."

The writer returned to the States, began adoption proceedings for the girl. Trung returned to newspaper-hawking. After long bouts with Vietnamese and American red tape, the girl's adoption was approved.

Seltzer says she was one of the first infants flown out of Saigon in America's "Operation Babylift" — North Vietnamese troops closed in on the city in the spring of 1975.

He said the boy somehow got on a Saigon-to-Guam flight, then flew to Hawaii and Seattle and, three weeks after Phuong's arrival, wound up at the Mailibu, Calif., home of a lady who'd agreed to house a Vietnamese child for a while.

She couldn't adopt the lad, but he had the name of the Seltzers. A call was made, a reunion held.

A bizarre four-point play by Most Valuable Player Yogi Gutierrez with 5:44 to play in the game put the Livermore Cowboys in too deep of a hole to recover as the Washington Huskies made off with their second championship of the Livermore High School Junior Varsity Basketball Tournament last night.

What made the play unusual was the fact that Livermore's leading scorer John Bachleda, who fouled out on the play, hacked Gutierrez during the shot, not afterwards. The latter often brings about a one-and-one situation, but John was called for an "intentional" foul.

That equalled the Cowboys' output for the entire period.

Strangely, although they had about the same number of fouls, Washington won the game by a wide margin at the foul line. The Huskies scored only twelve times from the field, but canned 22 free throws to offset 15 baskets and 11 foul shots by the hosts.

Gutierrez led the Huskies with 15 points, while Bill Morones added ten. Bachleda topped the Cowboys with 13 while Mike May added 12.

May, who was all over the boards for Livermore in the last quarter, was the lone Cowboy named to the all-tournament team. Joining May and Gutierrez in the select circle were the Huskies' Tim Hemming, Monte Vista's Ted Helgans, Moreau's Chuck Rosales, and Troy Thomas of San Ramon.

But fouls continued to plague Livermore as the Huskies scored the last eight points of the half from the foul line. Kevin Abbott was particularly busy, hitting six charity tosses, including the pair that got the lead back for Washington, 27-26.

The Huskies extended their lead by another pair of Abbott foul shots when Todd Betten-court was a bit too aggressive in breaking up the Huskies' period ending slowdown.

Moreau won third place, beating San Ramon 78-54.

Tigers, Knights keep top spots

OAKLAND — Some top-rated teams took their holiday beatings, but Fremont and Castlemont High continued their winning ways to remain 1-2 in the East Bay Prepwriters' Basketball Poll released today.

While the East Bay Athletic League continued its non-association, the Oakland Athletic League maintained its oligopolistic presence by landing four teams in the top five spots.

The top-ranked Tigers won the St. Elizabeth's Tournament over the weekend to run its season record to 11-0 while Castlemont, whose only blemish on a 10-1 record came at the hands of Fremont, won the McClymonds Christmas Tournament.

Oakland, in a third place tie with St. Joseph's, lost their first game of the season against Redwood, 64-61, in the finals of the Cable Car Classic, but moved up from sixth place anyway.

Livermore Invite

Mat, 'Poke grapplers place high

Granada High's multi-talented wrestling team walked across town to Livermore High's gymnasium Saturday and proceeded to break the place up.

They weren't using guns, chains, or knives, only a combination of half-nelsons, cradles and near falls as the defending East Bay Athletic League champion Matadors rolled up 21½ points to take the team championship of the Livermore High Wrestling Invitational.

Six Granada grapplers reached the finals Saturday. Seven Granada grapplers reached the finals, while Roy Davis and Brent Dixon won titles to lead the EBAL-loaded tournament.

Host Livermore High School fared almost as well as the Mats by placing four wrestlers in the championship bouts, and tied with Antioch for the num of championship wrestlers that won their bouts, as Naish Piazza, Darryl Hansen and Gery Tennyson all won matches. Amador's Dave Potts also won a title.

Davis, who started out the year wrestling in the 112-pound class on the varsity level but was moved to the 120-pound JV level because of a weight problem, returned to the varsity 112 ranks Saturday in gaining the Most Valuable Wrestler award for the lightweight classes.

The Granada junior recorded the only pin of the night, sticking Antioch's Rick Stallings at 1:52 of the first round.

Dixon won the 175-pound title and with it the MVP for the heavyweight. He came from behind to post a 9-7 win over Ellmore with a Three-point near fall in the closing seconds of the match.

Hansen etched out a 7-4 win over Amador's Ernie Zumbach in the 191-pound class, while heavyweight Tennyson, who has wrestled in that class since his freshman year, tipped Washington's Henry Hayden, 12-9.

Naish Piazza rolled up a 12-0 win over Granada's Raul Lopes in the 138-poundclass championship bout, while Potts pocketed the 103-pound title with a neat 5-0 victory over Antioch's Bull Dupri.

San Ramon wrestlers took two weight classes, with Steve Ramos' 9-0 shut-out of Concord's Tom McEachran in the 120-pound bout the starter.

In the 133-pound scuffle the Wolves' Dave Arrighi and Granada's Mike Laflin were tied, 9-9, after the regulation three rounds, but Laflin had incurred a muscle pull in the second round. Granada coach Steve Page Laflin out of the overtime

Greene promises Raiders equal time

The memories of 15 Sunday games — and of one Saturday game — remain fresh in their minds. The pictures are vivid.

There is Lynn Swann, Pittsburgh's wide receiver. He soars downfield, is cut down by Oakland safety George Atkinson's forearm and suffers a concussion.

There is Russ Francis, New England's solid tight end. He charges upfield, is jolted by Atkinson's forearm and suffers a broken nose.

Now the Steelers, who saw one of their own victimized at the start of the National Football League season and watched one of the Patriots' stars being manhandled a few days back, are ready to teach Atkinson a lesson.

Pittsburgh and the Raiders, who seem to have a thing about playing each other for the American Conference championship, will do so Sunday in Oakland for the third consecutive year. The previous two times, the Steelers have used the Raiders as stepping stones to Super Bowl victories.

A few hours earlier, the Los Angeles Rams and the Vikings will be getting together in Minnesota for the second time in three years to decide the National Conference title.

For the winners, it'll be a trip to sunny Southern California and a Jan. 9 date in Super Bowl XI at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. The oddsmakers say it'll end up as a rematch of Super Bowl IX between the Vikings and Steelers. Each team is rated a four-point favorite in its conference championship.

"That stuff they did to Lynn when we played them ticked off a lot of guys on this team," Pittsburgh defensive tackle Mean Joe Greene said of the Raiders' 31-28 victory last Sept. 12, when Swann was kayoed. "Then I watched George Atkinson do the same kind of crap against New England" in the Raiders' 24-21 playoff victory Saturday.

"I guarantee that if Atkinson starts pulling that kind of stuff next Sunday — well, that's my kind of football. I'll come off the bench to get his butt if I have to." Added Greene: "That's the vengeful part of football. It shouldn't exist at all but it seems to be the way Oakland is taught. I saw movies of what Atkinson did to Swann. It was illegal and dirty. It was flagrant, but nothing Oakland does surprises me."

"Well, we have guys who can play that kind of football, too. We can play it any way they want it."

Some Steelers seem divided on just how to approach the possibility of a below-the-belt showdown in Oakland.

Dwight White, a defensive end who wears the touching nickname of "Mad Dog," announced after Pittsburgh's 40-14 crushing of Baltimore last Sunday: "Hey, we can play rough and nasty, just like Oakland. Maybe that's what it will take."

But Jack Lambert, the Pittsburgh linebacker who plays football with the exuberance of a runaway locomotive in a freightyard, said: "If you're asking me if I'll lower myself to hitting a man in the back of the head (which is what happened to Swann), the answer is no."

Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, whose touchdown run with 10 seconds to play Saturday turned back the Patriots, said he felt a triumph over Pittsburgh couldn't be a better tonic for the Raiders, who have had to live with the accusation that they can't win the big ones.

"The monkey's on our back every year at this time. The only way to get it off is to win," he said. "It would be rewarding and give us a lot of satisfaction to beat Pittsburgh. That's only natural because of the way they've picked our pockets so many times."

Raiders defend Pat blasts

OAKLAND — The Oakland Raiders say their style of play against the New England Patriots simply typified "playoff atmosphere."

The Patriots, 24-21 losers Saturday in their first exposure to the National Football League playoffs, called it simply dirty football.

"That's too bad. Football is not a game where you touch people. It's a game where you hit people," said linebacker Phil Villapiano, whose extra effort included snaring a New England face mask.

"We gave them a little Raider-style football. We attacked them, held them, grabbed them, smashed them. That's why they got only 21 points and we won. They were complaining, we were complaining. That's playoff atmosphere. They'd never been in it before."

The Pats are sure to play like tigers in their next playoff test.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, coming here Sunday to defend the American Conference title they've won the past two seasons with victories over Oakland, won't be surprised or shocked by any forearm shots from the Raiders.

Wide receiver Lynn Swann came out of the Steelers' season opener here, a 31-28 loss, with a concussion. Coach Chuck Noll talked of a "criminal element" in the game and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle fined Oakland safety George Atkinson $1,500 for the blow which decked Swann.

Atkinson responded recently with a $3 million slander lawsuit against the Steelers and Noll.

"I don't have anything to say about Swann," Atkinson says now.

The receiver who had five catches in Sunday's 40-14 victory over Baltimore will be running in Atkinson's direction again Sunday in the teams' fifth postseason meeting in five years.

Atkinson's analysis of the Steelers-Colts game after watching it on television was that, "The Colts were intimidated. That won't happen to us. We have a team that can't be intimidated."

New England tight end Russ Francis, whose nose was broken early in Saturday's playoff opener, said later, "I don't want to say who broke it. He's a good football player, and he's got a lawsuit besides."

Francis added, "If I wanted to avoid things like broken noses, I should have chosen a different profession."

The tight end concluded, "I've got a broken nose for Christmas."

Atkinson and the Raiders have a holiday weekend date with Pittsburgh for a game which could produce a few more.

Ford Pinto outsells: Chevette Vega Datsun B-210 Toyota Corolla VW Rabbit Honda or any other small car.

(wheelbases under 100 inches)

Check the facts:

1. Low price.

Ford's Pinto Pony starts out with a low base sticker price of just $3,099 (excluding title, taxes, destination charges and required California equipment).

PINTO PONY	$3,099
CHEVETTE COUPE	$3,225†
VEGA COUPE	$3,248†

†With rebates. Chevette $3,025. Vega $3,048

So even with Chevy's temporary rebates, Pinto is sticker-priced only $51 over Vega and $74 over Chevette. But see how Pinto's extra value continues for years.

The Pinto Pony: our most economically priced Ford Pinto.

2. High resale value.

Pinto consistently has high resale value. In fact, at retail prices, an average two-, three- or four-year-old base Pinto sold for more than a similar Chevy Vega, even though Vega is usually sticker-priced higher than a new Pinto (Pinto was $66 lower than Vega in 1973, $22 higher in 1974, and $17 lower in 1975.) Compare Pinto's resale prices to Vega's.

Used Car Retail Prices, December 1976

MODEL YEAR	VEGA	PINTO	PINTO ADVANTAGE
1973	$1,350	$1,600	$250

1975	$2,150	$2,450	$300

Even with rebates, most small cars have a tough time beating Pinto's built-in and lasting value.

3. Excellent mileage and performance.

Pinto still has excellent mileage ratings. Even though Pinto's powerful cast-iron engine—proven in millions of driver miles—gives it the power for climbing steep hills, passing quickly and entering highways confidently.

FORD

When America needs a better idea, Ford puts it on wheels.

4. Scheduled maintenance reduced $353.

• Over the past four years, more than 75% of the scheduled maintenance requirements on Pinto's 4-cylinder engine have been reduced or eliminated. That's an estimated reduction in costs of $353.

• So today, the base Pinto's average scheduled service is estimated at only $186 for the first 50,000 miles.

MacPhail advised against Kuhn move

CHICAGO — American League president Lee S. MacPhail described for the first time in public on Monday just what baseball's establishment did after maverick owner Charlie O. Finley announced the $3.5 million dollar trade of three star players.

MacPhail was called to testify by lawyers for the Oakland A's owner as trial on his suit against baseball Commissioner Bowie K. Kuhn entered its third day.

On June 15, Finley sold pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for a million dollars each and pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

In voiding the sale of three Oakland players for the cash only sum of $3.5 million, Kuhn said the sale would allow "the rich clubs to buy champions" and upset "competitive balance" by making some of the 24 major league teams too good to beat.

MacPhail, a former administrator of baseball in the commissioner's office, testified that both he and National League president Charles S. Feeney advised Kuhn not to interfere with Finley's sales.

MacPhail said he rode a plane with Kuhn the night Finley announced the sales June 15. Then he participated in a frantic conference call early on June 16 with five out of six members of the major league executive council.

"We both agreed that it was incredible that these assignments (sales) had been made," MacPhail testified in U.S. District Court. "I advised Kuhn that I thought he should not take action to cancel the sales."

"Mr. Kuhn said he had to discuss the merits of his taking action to set aside the sales. I advised him not to take such action."

Later, MacPhail testified that Feeney was one of the participants in the conference telephone call and Feeney, too, advised against immediate action to void the sales.

Feeney is not expected to testify until January, when Kuhn's lawyers say they will call most American League owners to buttress their claim that Kuhn had the power to order Rudi, Blue and Fingers back to the A's even after Rudi and Fingers were suited in Red Sox uniforms for a June 16 game.

But in a sworn deposition filed with the court but not yet admitted as evidence, Feeney confirms MacPhail's testimony, saying he and MacPhail were worried that the Major League Players' Association bargaining talks would be affected adversely and that Finley might sue. The deposition was taken by Finley's lawyers on July 16.

Judge Frank J. McGarr is hearing Finley's suit, which is expected to run through Thursday before recessing until after New Year's Day.

Finley's lawyers said they will call New York Yankees' President Gabe Paul and Houston owner Bob Short to testify Tuesday, with testimony by Finley planned for Wednesday or Thursday.

Cowboy girls win consolation title

WALNUT CREEK — Livermore High School's Girls Basketball team out-scored Las Lomas 12-3 in the third quarter to romp to a 40-24 win and take the consolation title in the Del Valle Girls 14th Invitational Basketball Tournament over the weekend.

Janet Volkman led a balanced Livermore scoring attack with eight points while Patty Shitley bucketed seven, and Kim Bohannon and Sue Goodman each contributed six.

Las Lomas' one-girl offensive attack, Mary Skrivanch, scored 19 points to lead the losers. She scored 16 of those points on the first half.

Diane Leri's tenacious defensive effort and the rebounding of Volkman and Goodman spurred the 'Pokes to the consolation win.

San Ramon High also played in the tourney and advanced to Saturday night's third place game, but were downed by Berkeley High, 36-24.

Nancy Kerlinger led the Wolves in scoring with 10 points.

Can one girl carry a basketball team to a winning season? Coach Dave Ramm of the Granada Matadors will find out this year.

All but one of the starting players from last year's 15-4 Granada team have departed, leaving Ramm with Junior center Lynn Bouslimon. Bouslimon at 5'11" has averaged over 20 points a game in leading the Granada girls to two pre-season victories.

Other players expected to give support to Bouslimon are guards Kathy Honour, a senior and sixth girl on last year's team; Barbara Morse, a senior guard; Paula Soto, a Sophomore guard up from J.V.; Kim Eupps, a 5'7" sophomore also up from J.V.;

Paula Strong, a senior forward; Bitty Vierra, a sophomore guard; and Pat Cassidy, a 5'10" freshman.

"This team must improve a great deal to be a factor in the EBAL race," Coach Ramm said, "we have Lynn, and a lot of inexperience. But we are working hard and I will try to find the talent we need."

"We will play each game one at a time, and they will all know they have been in a ball-game even if they beat us, but I'm not sure at this time that I can predict a high finish for our team," Coach Ramm continues, "I think Monte Vista, Dublin and Amador are the best of the League. Livermore, California, and Granada will do battle for the middle of the rankings this year."

Full winter planned by LARPD

LIVERMORE — The excitement of an overnight snowshoe backpacking trip in the Sierras sets the pace for a winter program by Livermore Area Recreation and Park District.

The course, taught by Dave Holten, is designed to provide an entry experience into foot travel, camping and survival. Topics covered in five two hour classes include clothing, equipment, navigation and emergencies.

The overnight trip completing the course will include snow cave digging, igloo construction and the climb of an easy but snow-bound mountain peak.

For the beginner of the slopes, LARPD is starting a new beginning ski school, with two days of lecture and films, as well as two days of slope sessions at Vista Meadows packed with snow ice.

Kim Grandfield and Marcus Libkind teach courses in ski touring. An introductory course includes two lectures and a two day field trip to Kirkwood Meadows with two nights lodging.

For those who prefer winter in the kitchen, Nahide Craig will teach a class in gourmet Turkish cooking. She will cover preparation of imaginative, economical, nutritious food which is prepared with herbs rather than spices.

LARPD officials note this course should be interesting for vegetarians, natural food cooks and yogurt lovers. The class consists of menu planning, recipes, actual preparation and tasting.

And for the overweight, Louise Devoto will show beginners and advanced beginners how to use Yoga, a slow gentle way to awaken and tone all parts of the body, resulting in a greater sense of well-being and relaxation.

LARPD also plans a kinder movement class, led by Kelly Essary at the Recreation Center, 8th and H streets. Pre school children will explore many areas of movement through music, creative play, motor skills and other activities. Gymnastics will also be covered.

Other pre school classes to be offered this winter are tiny tots, nature and science discovery, tots and nature and science discovery.

Other pre teen activities include, trampoline, basic gymnastics, baton, tap, pre ballet, ballet, drawing and watercolor, multi media, nature and science exploration.

Other teen and adult activities include karate, yoga, pre and post natal exercise, figure improvement, guitar, drawing and pastels, pottery, redwood burl tables and cake decorating, quilt making, watercolor, macrame, oils, and house plants.

Registration for all classes will be taken at the Recreation Center beginning Tuesday, Jan. 11 from 7-9 p.m. and will continue at the LARPD district office, 71 Trevarno Road, beginning Jan. 12. Registration at the district offices, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., are filled on a first come, first served basis.

Registration may be made for one family plus one other person each class. Individuals may register for only one session of any individual activity. Non-residents may register beginning Jan. 12. Adult classes include high school students.

Details and prices of all classes will be in the Winter '77 Program and Leisure Guild, scheduled for release Jan. 4. For further information, call Dorothy Svets, senior recreation supervisor, at 447-7300.
